

QUAKING TOWN

The quaking city of Matsushiro sits at the base of Mt. Minikami, the flat-top mountain in the background.

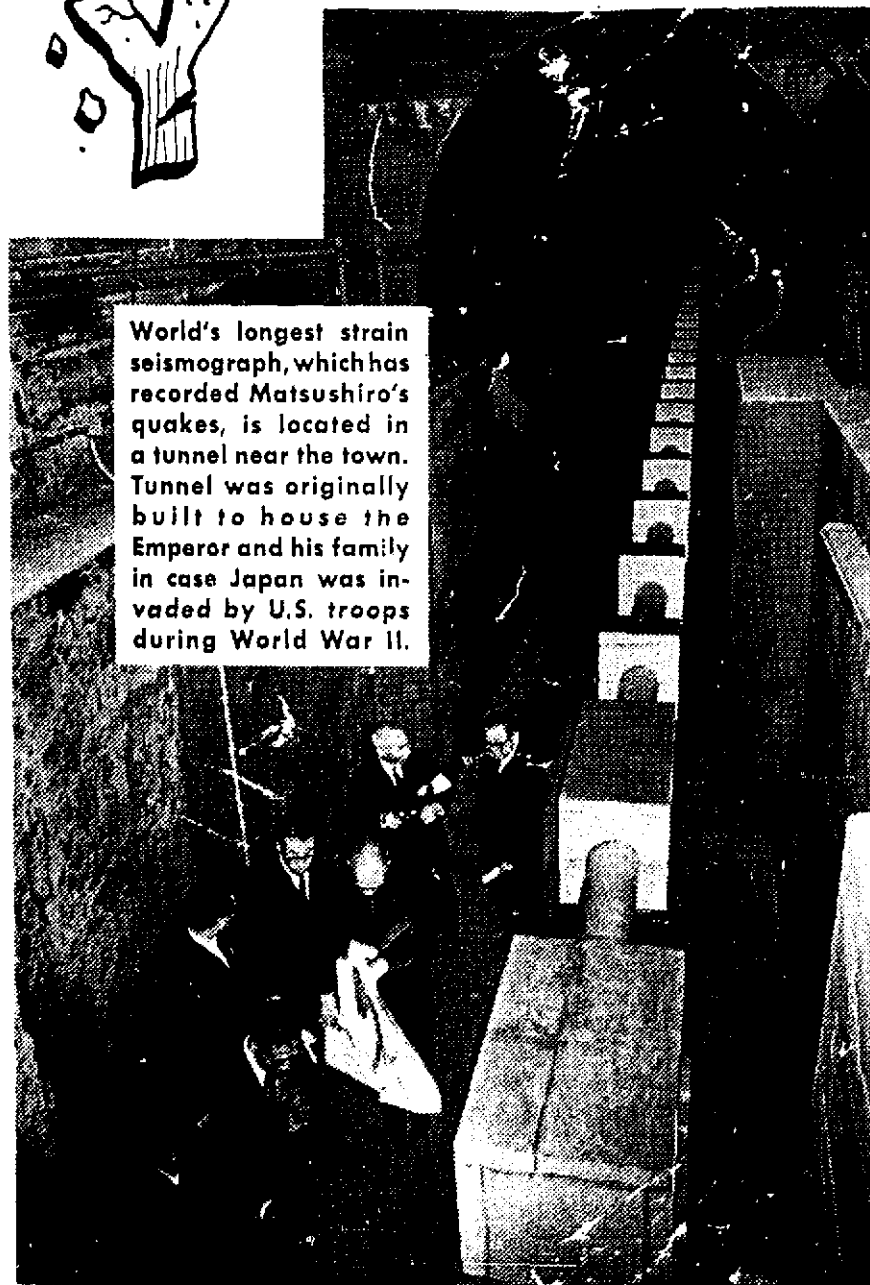

The children all wear special padded bonnets to protect their heads from falling objects during quakes.

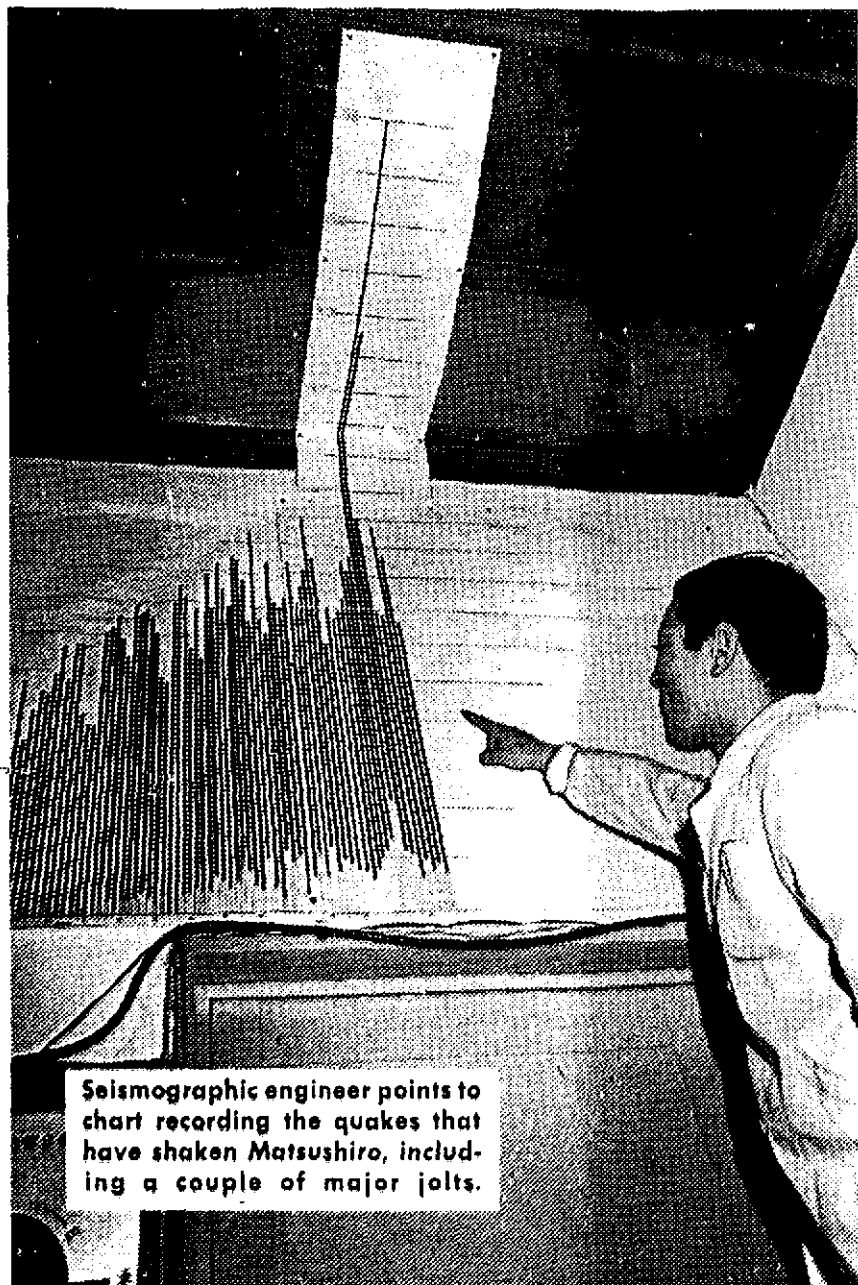

Statues at the Shimizu Buddhist Temple in Matsushiro had to be tied to the wall to keep them from toppling over.

A school building is reinforced with wooden beams by volunteer carpenters to help hold it together during the numerous earthquakes.

World's longest strain seismograph, which has recorded Matsushiro's quakes, is located in a tunnel near the town. Tunnel was originally built to house the Emperor and his family in case Japan was invaded by U.S. troops during World War II.

Seismographic engineer points to chart recording the quakes that have shaken Matsushiro, including a couple of major jolts.

Fires, which normally follow the earthquakes, are more feared than the quakes themselves. Matsushiro's firemen drill constantly with this small fire truck designed to get through narrow streets.

Fear hangs over the citizens of Matsushiro.

This rural town of 22,600, located in a pleasant valley at the base of the Japan Alps some 110 miles northwest of Tokyo, has been jolted more than 130,000 times since a series of earthquakes began there last August 3.

A seismographic scientist on the scene said that the epicenter of the quakes is an oval area seven by four miles with Mt. Minikami at its center. The mountain sits at the edge of Matsushiro.

The quakes are believed to be volcanic, the scientist said, with molten lava striking hard against the earth's crust beneath the mountain. "It's like a pot boiling, rocking the lid. The bubbles are like jolts."

If the lid—the ground under the town—wins the battle, the energy from below will eventually die out.

That's a day eagerly looked forward to by the shaken citizens of Matsushiro. So far no one has been injured but the quakes have caused considerable damage, cracking walls, tilting pillars, disjoining sliding doors and popping tiles from roofs.

Many of the town's old wooden schools had had to be condemned. Others are propped up with wooden beams. School children undergo constant earthquake drills, dropping from their stools to the floor and placing pillows on their heads to protect them from falling objects.

Tourism, once a major source of revenue for the town, has fallen off to nothing. Other industries there also feel the pinch with the nervous residents all afraid to leave their homes for long.

Some say that the quakes will eventually subside but others claim that pressure is building for a major blowup. In the meantime, many of Matsushiro's citizens are complaining that the constant quakes are making them neurotic.

"This is bad for the health," one woman said.

A New Pop Music Primer for Parents

By PHILIP WEDELL
Moderator Magazine
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — A few months ago a violent political debate came to a head when the prophet of doom met the proclaimer of the new world.

The confrontation was not on a university debating platform, a television news special or even the Senate floor. The audience was all of teenage America and the forum was every major pop music station in the nation.

Day after day, time after time, the airways carried the battle between "The Eve of Destruction" and "The Dawn of Redemption."

For decades, the cocktail party rule, "Don't talk about personal income, religion or politics," had been rigidly supported by the mass media chatter makers. But suddenly controversy was legitimate, and pop music will never again be the same. The new themes of social and political criticism make the Kingston Trio and Peter, Paul and Mary seem ridiculously sugar-coated.

Now the liberal chants that he's liberal but he "wouldn't let his daughter marry Barry Goldwater." The conservative slings back that "I spy for the FBI" ("Just because you have your shade down low, I know when you're up/I know when you're down/I know when you're in").

Armchair analysis of pop music used to look for the sexual connotation. Now they must also hunt for the political meanings.

The trend is not without cause. This has been a year in which a new student dance fad goes almost unnoticed (except by the adult disapproving crowd). On the other hand, thousands of students are marching in peace demonstrations, collecting blood for the soldiers in Viet Nam and circulating petition after petition for and against President Johnson's policy.

The most conservative student organization, Young Americans for Freedom, has grown from 5,000 to 25,000 members in three years, and a substantial proportion of the new chapters are being organized in high schools.

Political activity on the left has also begun to convert high school students.

No wonder pop music is turning political.

Bob Dylan remains the leader of political pop. For several years, Dylan songs and sounds attracted devoted cults on college campuses. Then, without warning, he exchanged his blues guitar and harmonica for an electronic amplifier and rock 'n' roll band. Old fans mourned the death of the "authentic" Dylan, but millions of new listeners praised the birth of "folk rock."

The new pop sound might better be called Dylan rock, for there is little resemblance to the popular folk music of the late '50s. The Kingston Trio's ballad of "Tom Dooley" is in the 19th century compared to Dylan's "Subterranean Homesick Blues." Belafonte sang of his love for little "Mary Ann" (who was "down by the seashore sitting sand"), but Dylan preaches "Love Minus Zero/No Limit."

While the Kingston Trio rode the "MTA" and looked with self-pity at its "Scotch and Soda," Dylan shoots pool with some of the folks and wonders if he can find a picket sign to join a demonstration.

Even more revolutionary than Dylan and his dozen or so come-lately imitators is a new trend of behavior in the pop music industry itself. Language expert S. I. Hayakawa wrote, "The words of popular songs are largely (but not altogether) the product of white song writers for predominantly white audiences."

Every big city had a Negro radio station with a Negro audience — and several white stations with white audiences. All this ended with the Motown sound (Motor Town, for Detroit).

The man behind the Motown sound is Gordy Parks, a $35-a-week garage mechanic living in a Negro area of Detroit. Then he discovered the Supremes and he was on his way.

The beauty of the Motown sound is that it begins to capture a bit of the traditional Negro blues which pop music sterilized when it first diluted jazz for the mass audience. The Supremes call their music "blues with a pop beat."

It is not the original blues of Southern cotton fields, nor even authentic jazz blues, but there is an element of the spiritual of the Negro church services. Appropriately, the youthful audiences find that the Motown sound has "soul."

The Supremes began singing in their church choir, and their all-time best seller, "Stop in the Name of Love," still has the exciting flavor of an easy musical exchange between a minister and his congregation.

It is probably more than coincidence that Gordy Parks and the Motown sound arrive just after the passage of the 1965 Civil Rights Act. There are still Negro radio stations. There are still what must be called white radio stations. The Motown sound is a sometimes unhappy blend of the two, and an integrated pop musical group is still a rarity.

Family Search

Editor The Star: I am trying to locate several families, who apparently traveled together into your part of Arkansas and into northern Louisiana. The first of them came as early as 1820 and others of the families followed later. They came from Missouri and Kentucky.

We are writing a book on these families. These are the "lost branches" of our family and we are anxious to find them so that the information about their families may be included in our record and preserved.

Josiah Wilson, with at least three children and possibly more, came from Lincoln County, Mo., to Sevier County, Ark., in 1820. He had twin daughters Sarah (Sally) who later married John Miller, and Betsey who married Amos Wright. His son John, who came with him, married a widow Mary Henderson, in Homer, La., and moved to Terrell, Tex.

It is possible that another of his daughters, Margaret Wilson, whose husband was John Hammonds also came. The Hammonds and Wilson families were related in more than one way.

We have inherited some old letters written by Josiah and some of his descendants. In 1838 Josiah wrote from Pine Wood, Sevier County, where he was living with his daughter Besty Wright, to his daughter Sally Miller in Minden, La. In about 1920 there was a Mrs. Laura Hammonds of DeQueen who was related to the family. At about the same time, a Mr. Ab Du-laney of Ben Lomand, Arkansas, corresponded with others in family, stating that he was trying to locate Josiah's grave, which may have been at Brown-town. I have presently been unable to locate any of the Hammonds, Du-laney, Wright, Miller, or Wilson families in that area, but feel there surely must be someone still living there.

A Mrs. Elizabeth Holt Hammonds who lived in LaMesa, California, in 1918, wrote to relatives in Louisiana and Arkansas. The Rev. Dr. John D. Hammonds of Hot Springs was apparently connected to the family. Some years ago, a Mrs. Nettie Miller Holmes, of Minden, spent some time in gathering records which to date I've been unable to locate.

The Wilson-Hammonds family holds a family reunion each year in Missouri. We'd be so pleased if we could find any of the above people. We have a great amount of information on many branches of this family which we'd gladly share with anyone who is interested.

Will anyone who knows anything of any of these people please write to me? Your assistance will be greatly appreciated. Our Family Association would consider the hiring of a professional genealogist in that area, if anyone is interested in the assignment.

Amateur Psychiatry Not For Classroom

Dear Helen: Please don't think this letter is silly for it is a very serious problem to us. We have an English teacher who is trying to analyze us.

In one case he felt a girl was too nervous. He stopped her in the hall and got her so embarrassed and upset she can't look him in the face during class.

Another time he delved so deep into a student's life, past history, etc., that she ended up sobbing. When she came back to class she was shaking so badly she could hardly write.

We also feel this teacher brings up subjects that are not proper for THIS class. Discussions on sex should be confined to "Social Problems" classes. We can't talk to the principal. What can we do? — Troubled Students

Dear Students: Why can't you talk to the principal, or anyway your guidance counselor? Part of their jobs is to settle differences between teachers and students.

Amateur psychiatry is only good if it's confined to listening. When it edges into prying or advice then it's dangerous and should be stopped. — H.

Helen, there's nothing wrong with him a little kindness wouldn't cure. He stutters, that is all. But these boys; they hit him, and I mean hard.

Helen he is really swell, if they would give him a chance. All my girl friends say no other boy will look at me if I keep sticking up for him, but gee, he needs Somebody's friendship!

The proceeds of the bonds will be used, together with available funds, for the constructing and equipping of an industrial project to be operated by Missouri Research Laboratories, Inc. In this regard, provision will be made by the County in the Order authorizing the issuance of the bonds for the suspension of the collection of the special tax as long as there is no default by the Lessee under the Lease Agreement. The County will covenant that surplus tax collections and surplus lease rentals, being the amount in excess of that necessary to insure the prompt payment of the principal of and interest on the bonds as the same become due, must be used from time to time on each interest payment date for the redemption of bonds prior to maturity.

No bid of less than par and accrued interest on the basis of an interest rate of 4% per annum will be entertained and no contingent provisions may be inserted in any bid. The award, if made, will be to the bidder whose bid results in the lowest net interest cost to the County, to be determined by computing the aggregate interest cost to the County from the date of the bonds to maturity and deducting therefrom any premium bid. The bonds will be sold upon auction bids, the sale to be held at 2:00 o'clock p.m., on the 10th day of May, 1966, at the office

Prentice Did Not Dream of Title Play

By BERNIE KENNEDY
Associated Press Sports Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The last thing Dean Prentice expected when he suited up for the start of the 1965-66 National Hockey League season was to be playing in the Stanley Cup finals.

Prentice, acquired by Detroit from Boston in a late-season trade, almost single-handedly carried the Red Wings into the Stanley Cup finals with an assist and a pair of dramatic goals in the 3-2 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday night.

Prentice tied the score with 3:35 remaining in the game and came back 63 seconds later to get the winner.

"It was the biggest goal I have ever scored in my life," Prentice said. "What made it more important was the fact that it puts me in the finals for the first time in my 14-year career. I don't have to tell you what a thrill that is."

The goals were the third and fourth for Prentice in the series. He scored six goals and added nine assists in 19 regular season games for the Red Wings and entered the playoffs with a career record of two playoff goals and seven assists.

The triumph gave the Red Wings a 4-2 edge in the semifinal series. They will meet Montreal in the first game of the best-of-seven final series in Montreal Sunday afternoon.

Records Fall in Kansas Track Meet

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — A University of Kansas quartet, anchored by Jim Ryun's 3:59 mile, raced to a freshman intercollegiate record in the distance medley Thursday to kick off the 41st Kansas Relays.

Ryun thrilled the small crowd as he finished his four-lap leg with a torrid 53.8 quarter, giving Kansas a 9:50.4, and breaking the old record of 9:55, set by Loyola of Chicago last year.

New meet records are likely with Texas vs. Oklahoma State in the college sprint medley, and Kansas vs. Kansas State in the four-mile relay today.

A third meet mark should come in the 5,000 meters, where Olympian "Oscar" Moore of Southern Illinois, the tireless 28-year-old from White Plains, N.Y., has a career best of 13:58.8. The meet mark is 14:36.

Finals will also be held today in the college sprint medley, open 400 meter hurdles, broad jump and discus.

Preliminaries also will be held in the university and college 120-yard high hurdles, 100-yard dash, and the 440, 880 and mile relays.

In addition the first five events of the grueling 10-event decathlon will be held.

The only final event held Thursday in the college-university-open divisions was the 10,000 meters, won by Pat McMahon of Oklahoma Baptist in 30:19.3.

Japs Turning Marathon Into a Duel

BOSTON (AP) — The Japanese are turning the Boston A.A. Marathon into a personal duel in unprecedented domination of the annual 26-mile, 385-yard classic.

Combining speed, endurance and strategy, Japan's four-man contingent finished 1-2-3-4, challenging only each other for the final nine miles Tuesday in the 70th Hopkinton-to-Boston run.

Kenji Kimihara faltered after clearing "Heartbreak Hill," the highest rise on the route, and then tuned on a fabulous stretch sprint to overtake coleaders Seiichiro Sasaki and Tooru Terasawa with half mile left and win by 100 yards.

Each bidder will be required to deposit a certified or cashier's check in the amount of $4,440 on a bank that is a member of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, payable to the County, to be reclaimed as liquidated damages in the event the bidder is awarded the sale of the bonds but fails to complete the purchase. Checks of unsuccessful bidders will be promptly returned. Interest will not be paid on good faith checks.

Sunday-Monday at Saenger

A TRAP WITH HUMAN BAIT—Leamas (Richard Burton) realizes that the East have bitten the bait so carefully set up for them, when on his release from prison he is approached by Ashe (Michael Hordern), posing as a member of a charitable organization. A Salem production for Paramount Pictures, "The Spy Who Came In From The Cold".

Coming Soon to Saenger

God's Word Says Come

Come let us go into the House of the Lord

LEAD ME

...what an opportunity for God, when a man makes himself ready to be led. What a privilege for a lad like this, when a man is willing to lead. God has led youth and age to peace and victory—He will lead you when you are but willing. Wonderful things have been done by those who have heard His invitation —"Take My Hand." Man may lead man to a place where he can reach God's hand but he can't do his reaching for him. The stony road of indecision and moral depression is way out on the fringe... it does not lead to God. But man chooses the fringe area himself. God is waiting to be our Teacher, our Friend, our Comforter. He will be our Comrade if we will become as little children.

*He will be our Lord whenever we can say to Him,—
"Lead Me."*

Woman Completes 26-Mile Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Roberta Bingley, a 23-year-old blonde from San Diego, Calif., became the first woman to complete the 26-mile Boston marathon.

The Boston Athletic Association, which sponsors the 70-year-old annual Patriot's Day run from Hopkinton to Boston, doesn't accept women entries but Mrs. Bingley went along anyway, just for kicks.

She crossed the finish line Tuesday after the first 100 in a respectable 3 hours and 20 minutes.

Problem Is Best Risk

In this week's columns we have been trying to bring out the point that when declarer's problem is with one suit and one suit only, he should analyze the possible results by considering the various ways the suit may break against him. None of this has been elementary—in fact, it represents very advanced practice.

Today, we present the same tired North hand and the same South hand except for another change in the heart spots. Once more you open with three hearts and play that contract against the same deuce of diamonds opening and diamond return.

You lead out your ace of hearts and again drop the four and deuce. Once more you want to find the best play to avoid losing more than two heart tricks.

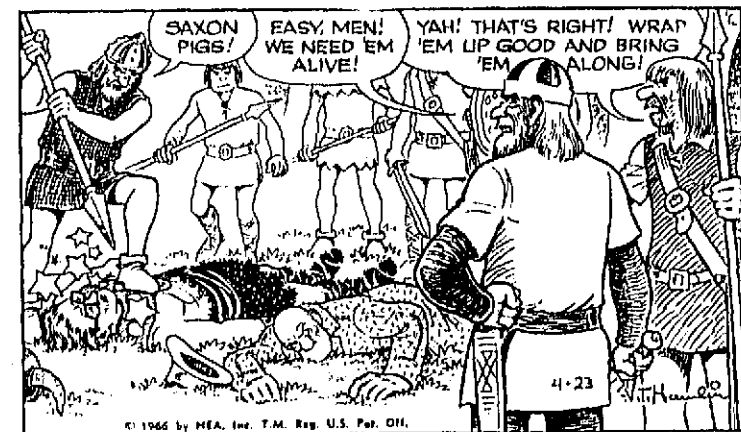

You start your study by eliminating all cases where your play makes no difference. The opponents still hold the king, jack, ten and seven. If those four cards are divided 2-2 all plays work out all right for you. If they divide 4-0 or king-jack-ten opposite singleton seven, all plays lose three heart tricks for you. That leaves three cases to consider. The 3-1 breaks when the singleton is the king, jack or ten.

If you lead your queen and the singleton is the king you will lose to the king, jack and ten and will wish you had led low. However, you will succeed in your objective if the singleton is the jack or ten. If you lead low you succeed against a singleton king but lose three tricks against a singleton jack or ten. Hence the queen lead is correct and a low lead inferior

The Professional Approach for Amateurs

'Everybody's Getting Into the Act'

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

FALLS CHURCH, Va.—(NEA) — It was inevitable. Dick Gilmartin and Bob Tullius reasoned, that someday somebody was going to start making money in amateur sports car racing.

So Gilmartin and Tullius decided to be first. They gave up lucrative jobs in Washington, formed a corporation and now, a year later, they are making money.

"We are not trying to make the SCCA (Sports Car Club of America) a profit-making outfit, or turn SCCA races into Grand Prix events for the pros," said Gilmartin, 33, a former advertising agency account executive.

"What we are trying to create is a more professional approach to amateur racing. We want to make sure that would-be Jimmy Clarks know what they're getting into and how to go about it," he said.

The corporation is called Group 44, after the number Tullius, one of the country's top amateurs, has on his racing cars. Group 44 is financially supported and equipped with cars and tools by Standard-Triumph (TR-3 and TR-4).

DICK GILMARTIN

"...keep costs to individuals down"

English Ford (Cortina) and Dodge (Dart), plus oil and tire companies.

"We operate in much the same way automotive manufacturers support sprint and stock car racing," Gilmartin said. "We do not want to compete for money when we race."

We do want to promote our cars and work with our suppliers on research and safety.

Gilmartin said that if there is a defensive tone to his explanation of his and Tullius' business, he could explain that, too.

"When we began this thing," he said, "there was criticism because some people thought we were trying to take amateur road racing away from the guy who works during the week and races on weekends as a hobby. 'This isn't the case at all."

SCCA racing has become so competitive that it is threatening to become a rich man's sport. The more competition, the more it costs to keep up.

"If a guy has driving talent we can help put him in a car at little cost. We hope other people will follow our lead."

"It doesn't necessarily have to be a business," Gilmartin said. "Sports car clubs, as a few have done, can work non-profit and put cars on the track, holding down costs to individuals."

SCCA plans support Group 44's theory. This year, SCCA will conduct a minimum of 250 speed events comprising more than 1,900 separate races involving at least 5,000 drivers at 100 different sites. Competition will include some 20,000 starting cars (production and modified sports cars, open-wheel and formula cars, and sedans) and over 1.5 million competition miles.

Gilmartin said that after this racing season Group 44 would branch into consultant work "for weekend warriors" and give safety clinics for teen-agers.

"Yes, teen-agers," Gilmartin said. "Everybody's getting into the sports car act."

NEW YORK (NEA)

Because Texas Western, a school that specializes in mining and metallurgy, won a national basketball championship recently, the subject of the scholar-athlete on the university level has been revived.

Frankly, nothing would have been said if the seven central figures of the drama didn't happen to be Negro, in a predominantly white school. They also come from such far-flung outposts as Gary, Ind., Detroit and the playground of Public School 120 in the Bronx.

Frank McGuire ran virtually the same kind of underground railroad from Manhattan to Chapel Hill, N.C. A kid popped a token in the subway and, presto, he popped up in the land of Dixie in basketball shorts. The Tar Heels with the Brooklyn accents—leader McGuire himself was an emigre from the concrete jungle—won a national championship with a magnificent undefeated season in 1957.

The team they beat, Kansas, had imported Wilt Chamberlain, taller than the fields of wheat, from the streets of West Philadelphia. And don't think that didn't raise hell.

But McGuire specialized in the recruiting of white boys to meet the social standards of the area in which he operated. So there was a permissiveness about his system.

The atmosphere which permeated the arena when Texas Western met Kentucky in the NCAA finals on the University of Maryland campus was something else. Baron Adolph Rupp, the coach of the Southeastern Conference school, has never been the epitome of personal popularity. Kentucky has won more than its share of national championships. The Baron cunningly worked up sympathy for Rupp's Runts, as he called the Kentucky varsity.

But the Miners, known only to the bands of coyotes which roam outside El Paso, Tex., were the pregame underdogs and should have been the sentimental favorites under normal conditions. This was the little Cinderella school striking out against Goliath, to mix a metaphor.

The situation wasn't normal (and the crowd was pro-Kentucky) because of a reluctance to accept such kids as Willie Cager, Willie Worsley, Orsten Artis, et al, as bona fide representatives of Texas Western College. Which ignores the fact, of course, that Pat Riley of Schenectady, N.Y., and Louis Dampier of Indianapolis, Ind., weren't grazed in the Blue Grass of Kentucky.

Texas Western is a blatant example of recruiting for quick results in college athletics. Basketball lends itself to a blitz program to hit the big-time because the game demands only five men on the court at one time.

Normally, Texas Western and its coach, Don Haskins, should be applauded for their altruism in making college education available to underprivileged kids. Cager, Worsley, Artis, Nevil Shed, Bobby Hill, David Lattin and Harry Flournoy weren't classic college material. If they were, a lot of athletic mills much closer to home would have been persuaded to enroll them.

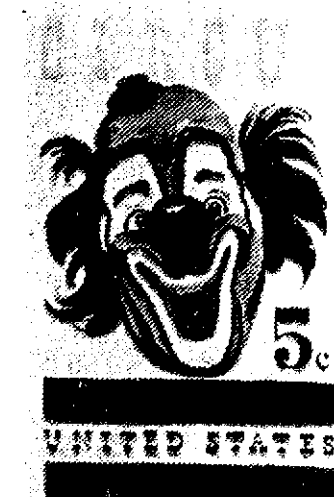

A man named Hilton White, who works for New York's recreation department, steered some of the kids to the school in El Paso. The recruiting network for colleges even manages to find such boys as Cager, who skipped scholastic sports because he had to work while in high school but was discovered playing for a team called the Bronx Falcons.

Lattin, a high school All-American from Houston, had his own agent to represent him in the quest for higher education. Big Daddy D, as he's called, served a short term at Tennessee A&I before transferring to El Paso. I have it on good authority that the agent asked for "walking around" money on his shopping expeditions.

The hypocrisy of the situation is that while Texas Western competed on the highest NCAA level, Pennsylvania, the Ivy League champ, was shut out because that conference refused to adhere to the NCAA demand that all athletes maintain a 1.6 grade level.

Imagine a kid who plays basketball for Harvard explaining that he got on campus because "a man just called me up and made me a good offer."

That's how one of the Texas Western stars, Nevil Shed, purportedly described his matriculation.

CHICAGO — (NEA) — The years have been good to Leo Durocher. And vice versa.

He looks fit and talks a lot. The voice is strong and the words are crisp and colorful. Many of them concern men he once led — some talented, others temperamental — but Leo isn't living in the past.

For the first time in a decade, he's doing what he most enjoys — managing a big league ball club. The town is Chicago, the team is the Cubs, and, if it isn't the most promising position in baseball, it's Leo's and he loves it.

Animated though his recollections of days gone by may be, Leo's glance never strays far from the field. With his blue cap pushed down so that it balances gingerly on the rim of his brow, he surveys his charges with an alert eye and a critical tongue. A brash product of a hungry era, Leo is not adverse to voicing opinions of his ballplayers, either to their faces, within earshot or to reporters.

Neither does he hesitate to talk of the qualities he admires most in his men. Then his eyes sparkle, he rubs his hands together and his words are gleefully aggressive.

"I want to see some desire," he says, placing great emphasis

LEO DUROCHER
"I want to see desire"

Series. Only three times in 15 years did he miss the first division.

Now he's with the Cubs, who haven't been in the first division for 20 years. And some folks wonder whether Leo can handle a club going nowhere. Oddly enough, the men least concerned with this are the Cubs themselves.

"Most of the players know of his reputation as a manager and, as a coach with Los Angeles," says Cub outfielder Billy Williams. "We know he's won before and he's a great leader. It has to help us."

Ernie Banks, twice the National League's most valuable player and, at 35 years of age, still a fine hitter, fielder and hustler, is even more enthusiastic.

"I think he's great," says Ernie, "and we're going to have a great year. He's brought enthusiasm and unity to the team, and he knows the game of baseball."

"Any club is going to have to beat us on the field, because they're not going to beat Leo," says Ron Santo, the Cubs' brilliant third baseman. "Actually, I think he's all we need a man who knows how to win and gets the best from his ballplayers."

With such endorsements from the Cubs' three finest players, Leo seems off to a good start. Now, if his team gets off as well

It's not a new facet of the Durocher approach to baseball. At Brooklyn he was Lippy Leo, at New York he was the Little Shepherd of Coogan's Bluff. At both, he wanted men who, as they say, "came to play." He got them, plus some top talent, and won three pennants and one World

Drying Up A Rich
Campaign Source

That Republican watchdog, Senator John J. Williams of Delaware, has rightfully put an end to a flagrant campaign fund raising abuse: Selling tax deductible "advertising" in dinner programs at (thousands of dollars a page to corporations that sell to the government and believe their interests are served by keeping on close terms with one or both political parties. This gimmick, which was devised to circumvent the law against corporations making political contributions, opened new fund raising vistas in 1964.

Internal Revenue Service regulations make it illegal for corporations to deduct the cost of ads in political journals unless the ads bear a direct relation to the advertiser's business and the expenditure does not exceed the advertising value of the space purchased. But both parties have taken the position that the advertising books are "non-political" in nature and thus do not violate the law. Despite rates of up to $15,000 a page, the I.R.S. hasn't asked if advertisers are making reasonable advertising expenditures.

In face of this obvious abdication of responsibility it was clearly up to Congress to tighten up the law, and this the Williams amendment to the recent tax bill has done — much to the dismay of both parties. — Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal

Meany Is Right — We Hope
As chief of the AFL-CIO, George Meany talks irately about the Democrats in power in Washington because, as he makes it out, they have not done altogether right by "labor" — union labor, that is. Meany told an AFL-CIO meeting "there is nothing in the record to sustain the idea that labor needs the Democratic Party; I am sure it is the other way around."

For 30 years and more, with only rare exceptions in purely local politics, an overwhelming majority of union leaders has been part and parcel of the Democratic organization, sitting in the party's high councils, going to conventions as delegates, influencing party policy. But now Meany has concluded: "We can't buy either party." We earnestly hope that is so. That no power in the nation, big labor, big business or big anything else, can overwhelm either the Republicans or the Democrats. The parties belong to the people, not to a single group. But there have been times when we had strong doubts. — Knoxville (Tenn.) News-Sentinel

How To Boil Water
This "trend to modern living" reached an all-time high the other day when in perusing the food news pages of a newspaper we came upon a "recipe" for spaghetti with meat sauce.

It read: "One package spaghetti with meat sauce. Prepare spaghetti and sauce as directed on package."

If this continues, the food pages for the next generation may yet have "recipes" telling how to boil water. — Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal

Jailbreakers Held in Florida

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Highway Patrol arrested five men Thursday it said had escaped from jail at Marion, Ark.

Trooper E. R. Hagler said the five were driving a stolen car, which contained a loaded pistol and more than a dozen bottles of whisky.

Hagler identified the men as Larry Stokes, 20; Lee Junior Branch, 33; Walter Rice, 38; James Henry Wallon, 23, and Raymond Warren, 18.

He said the men were serving sentences for burglary, grand larceny and forgery.

NYC Is Headed For Another Paper Strike

By RONALD I. DEUTSCH

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's largest city apparently per strike since its third newspaper strike since 1962 today as the deadline approached for the merger of three of its dailies.

Two of 10 unions that have threatened to strike because they have no contracts with the New World Journal Tribune, Inc., set last-minute bargaining sessions.

However, no new talks were scheduled for the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union, which is demanding severance pay for some 400 printers who face loss of jobs in the merger, the key issue in the dispute.

Another union, the AFL-CIO Newspaper Guild of New York, said it would begin picketing at 4 p.m., EST. Sunday.

The Scripps - Howard World-Telegram and Sun, an afternoon paper, publishes its final edition today. The Journal-American, a Hearst publication, publishes its last afternoon edition today and its final Sunday paper tomorrow.

The Herald Tribune, a morning newspaper, put out its last separate Sunday edition Sunday — combining future Sunday papers beginning May 1 with the Journal-American.

The merger, which received qualified approval from the Department of Justice, would thus end publication of one afternoon and one Sunday paper, leaving Manhattan with five dailies of general circulation and three Sunday publications.

Mayor John V. Lindsay sought to win a stay of the merger Friday at a meeting with publishers and union leaders. He failed, however.

"We've made up our minds to publish a new paper or no paper on Monday," said Matt Meyer, president of the new corporation.

Negotiations collapsed Thursday night and both sides have since said that chance for a settlement before Monday appeared hopeless. Even if the impasse were resolved before then, mechanical preparations for the new papers would probably delay their scheduled publication.

An unknown factor was whether other major New York dailies would shut down their plants in the event of a strike against the merging newspapers.

As members of the Publishers Association of New York City, the New York Times, New York Daily News, Long Island Star-Journal and the Long Island Press have shut down in the past on the premise that a strike against one is a strike against all.

Porpoises May Prove Invaluable

By RALPH DIGHTON

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Navy scientists have taught porpoises to tell one metal from another — a valuable trick for creatures which some day may be used in detecting submarines, mines and underwater missile installations.

For example a patch of metal not customarily found on submarines could help wide-ranging squadrons of porpoises identify friendly craft. Any craft not bearing this patch would be subject to ramming by the porpoises, trained to carry explosives in body harnesses.

This new achievement of the sleek, 200-pound mammals was disclosed Thursday at a marine science symposium of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, which also goes in for aquanautics.

Researchers W. E. Evans and B. A. Powell of the U.S. Naval Ordnance Test Station at China Lake, Calif., showed films of porpoises trained to pick out a plastic-encased panel of copper from identical-looking panels of aluminum and other materials. When they touch the right panel they get a piece of fish.

"We're not certain how they do it," Powell said in an interview, "but apparently it's another discrimination capability of their built-in, natural sonar."

"Our Flag, a Symbol of Americanism," Is Subject of Winning Legion Essay

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Earlier this week Cindy Reese daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Reese, received the Americanism Essay Award for her entry entitled "Our Flag, a Symbol of Americanism."

This was presented by the Leslie Huddleston Unit 12, American Legion Auxiliary, and the local winner will now be in state-wide competition. The winning essay follows.

"According to Webster, Americanism is 'attachment or allegiance to the traditions, interests or ideals of the United States or of democracy practiced in the United States.' This is perhaps a very precise definition for the word AMERICANISM, but what about the abstract meaning behind those eleven letters?"

"It would certainly be an impossibility to express on paper the feelings all Americans hold for their Country. I imagine Webster must have realized this when he tried to define the word; for Americans are such a scattered lot. They are all part of a great tossed salad which has been seasoned for almost 200 years by groups of people from all over the world. For various reasons; perhaps religious persecution, political force, poverty, or oppression, these people have been thrown together into one large bowl and have emerged as the American people."

"Since it is practically impossible to TELL other nations what America really is and means to us; what, as Americans, how do we do? We SHOW them. How? Here are a few examples:

"A group of 50,000 excited Americans are gathered in Dallas Texas, to see an important football game between two tough teams. Suddenly, amidst all the excitement and laughter strains of a familiar song pierce the ears of tense fans. As a television camera scans the bleachers, thousands of Americans are seen standing hand at heart eyes glued to a patch of red, white, and blue unfurling against the Texas sky. Is this not Americanism?"

"A group of 500 high school students are gathered in their auditorium for a morning chapel assembly. Before any speaker is introduced, however, the entire student body rises and begins to repeat slowly, 'I pledge allegiance to the flag.' These students are proud to be Americans and the flag symbolizes that pride to them. It symbolizes their Americanism."

"Slowly, silently, with firm steady steps an honor guard escorts the old and yellowed flag to the foot of the school flagpole where an ordinary barefooted boy awaits its victim."

"No one speaks. An unbroken silence reigns as one formally dressed student cuts the patch of blue away from the red and white stripes. This is a flag burning ceremony. The flag has become a worn out symbol of life and liberty in a nation yet young and far from worn out. Therefore, with the highest possible respect, it is given rest in mounting flames. In such a way, Americans show their love for an old symbol of America."

"As the 500 students stand humbly watching their smoldering flag, bits of American history flash through their minds. Many students see the first flag as Betsy Ross sat diligently sewing it from scraps of a soldier's blue uniform and white shirt and a woman's red petticoat. Others see Francis Scott Key writing a beautiful and famous song because of the inspiration he received during a Revolutionary battle. Some see hundreds of young boys in blue uniforms fighting to save the United States flag and the Union from disaster. Perhaps some see five brave soldiers on two jims sacrificing their lives to keep the flag waving. A few students see through misty tears a flag draped in black flying at half mast. They remember..."

"Then suddenly the ceremony is over. The flag is in ashes. The students fly slowly back into the hot schoolhouse. Finally, a few begin to chatter happily. They ARE happy. They are free individuals in a free society. America is their home and America means freedom to them. A 'Star-Spangled Banner' is their flag and it means America; land of the free, home of the brave... home of the individual... home."

Van Dalsem Has Some Opposition

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Herbert C. Rule III, 28, a Little Rock attorney, said Thursday he would oppose Rep. Paul Van Dalsem of Perryville for House Position 13, District 22.

Rule, a graduate of Yale and the University of Arkansas Law School, said Pulaski County does not need the type of representation that Van Dalsem can provide.

Van Dalsem has represented Perry County for 26 years, but reapportionment took Perry, the state's smallest county, into a district with Pulaski.

Coffelt Files for Attorney General

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Kenneth Coffelt, a Little Rock attorney, filed Thursday as a candidate for attorney general, after withdrawing from a race for chancery judge.

"Since Mr. Bennett has filed for re-election," Coffelt said, "I have decided that a bout between him and me for the office of attorney general is long overdue."

Coffelt said he had filed for the chancery post because he thought Bennett would not seek re-election, leaving the office open for a field of qualified young candidates.

81 Killed In Plane Crash; 17 Survivors

By CARL ROGAN

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — A chartered airliner crashed in the foothills of the rugged Arbuckle Mountains in southern Oklahoma Friday night, killing 81 of its 98 passengers, most of them Army recruits preparing for advanced basic training.

Seventeen survivors of the crash, which occurred when the huge turboprop overshot a converted World War II air base runway, were hospitalized, most of them in critical condition.

The dead were taken to a temporary morgue set up in Ardmore's Civic Auditorium.

There, 81 bodies were counted within a few hours after scores of rescuers began the grim task of moving victims from the heavily timbered hillside.

The death toll included one person who survived the crash but died later in an Ardmore hospital.

The official death count was confirmed by Col. George Donovan, battalion commander of the Ardmore National Guard unit.

The American Flyers airliner was to have stopped in Ardmore for fuel. It was flying from Ft. Ord, Calif., where the recruits had just completed basic training, to Ft. Benning, Ga., where they were to start airborne and other types of advanced training.

The plane was piloted by Reed Pigman, president of American Flyers. Pigman was identified as one of the dead.

"We worked like slaves, but it just didn't do any good," said Dr. James Schuller at Ardmore General Hospital when the man who survived the crash later died.

"It looked like an oil well blowing up," an eyewitness, Richardo Herera, 23, an American Flyers student said.

"The plane wobbled all over the place as we were coming down," said Pvt. James Gorman of Bellerose, N.Y., one of the survivors. "Then the plane hit."

Pvt. Joseph Deeny, 20, Lindenwood, N.J., said he "had to crawl to get away from the flames — they were licking at my legs."

"A couple of my friends were near me, and they were hurt awful bad," Deeny said. He had been sleeping in the rear of the plane and was thrown out when it slammed into the sandstone and granite slopes.

Gorman said he was still fastened by his seat belt when the plane slammed to earth.

"There was fire all around me and I undid my seat belt and got out... But I didn't have to climb out. There wasn't any more plane."

"The crash of the Lockheed Electra turboprop occurred during light rain. There was no severe weather although at this time of year tornadoes frequently are associated with rains in Oklahoma."

Tribesmen in India Rebelling

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Rebellious Naga tribesmen armed with machine guns and mortars were reported moving through the jungles of eastern India today, possibly toward a showdown with the Indian army.

News reports reaching New Delhi from Imphal, in the eastern state of Assam, said about 1,000 armed Nagas have infiltrated into Assam's Ukhrul area, where a cease-fire had been declared by the tribesmen and the army.

The tribal fighters were reported looting villages as they advanced. They call themselves members of the army of the "Federal Government of Nagaland," a rebel movement which demands independence from India.

The Nagas and another rebellious tribe in eastern India, the Mizos, both were under suspicion as a result of an explosion which killed 55 persons and injured 120 aboard a train in Assam Wednesday night.

Freedoms Award Is Presented

SEARCY, Ark. (A) — Dr. Kenneth D. Wells, president of the Freedoms Foundation, presented an award from the foundation to the National Education Program here Thursday.

The presentation came on the closing day of the 27th annual Freedom Forum, which is sponsored by the NEF. Dr. George S. Benson, former president of Harding College, heads the NEF.

Wells said the United States faces twin enemies in communism and corruption.

He said the goal of the "international conspiracy is to undermine and destroy the spiritual goals of our lives."

"If the communistic, atheistic word can get us to drop our guard and our spiritual concepts, they accomplish a major part of their goal," Wells said.

"This is not a skirmish. This is the battle for the soul of man."

Feels It Isn't What You Do But What You May Do That Adds Zest to This Life

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't what you do, it's what you may do that lends zest to life. It is the things undone that attract your interest.

All victories, to some extent, are boring. All possibilities, on the other hand, hold a potential thrill.

It pays, now and then, to write down the things you've managed to get done; then put down the things you have wanted to do, at one time or another, but never managed to get done. You'll invariably find there are still plenty of goals left to keep you happy — and frustrated.

Here, for example, is a one man's haphazard list of unachieved ambitions. I'd like to—

Milk a giraffe.

Ride an elephant in a circus parade.

Pitch a good game of horseshoes.

Spend a quiet week in a Trappist monastery with Cassius Clay and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Think of a way to wind up the war in Viet Nam so that every body in it would gain face.

Discover a way to infect with my gout all those who laugh at it.

Inherit a plantation on Tahiti with a million coconut trees tended by 10,000 long-haired maidens.

Give a harmonica recital at Carnegie Hall.

Come up with a magic ingredient that would make all martinis absolutely dry and replace the pugnacity in them with loving-kindness.

Candidates Filing at Rapid Rate

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Warren E. Wood, 57, of Little Rock, a former assistant A. S. attorney, filed Thursday as a Democratic candidate for circuit judge, 2nd Division, 6th Judicial District.

The post was vacated by Judge Guy Amsler, who resigned April 9 to accept an appointment to the state Supreme Court.

Wood, an attorney, spent four years with the FBI.

Other filings Thursday: Clifton Clark, 38, Melbourne, for state representative, District 9, Republican.

James Young, 38, Warren, for state representative, District 38, Republican.

Bill Irby, 51, Piggott, for state representative, Position 1, District 6, Democrat.

P. F. Lindsey of Batesville, for state representative, District 15, Democrat.

Jim Shaver, 38, Wynne, for re-election state representative, District 26, Democrat.

William Waddell, 13, and David Harvey, 12, were found safe Thursday in the sealed box car that had imprisoned them since April 8.

The boys climbed aboard in Fayetteville after learning from a trainman that the car was headed for Milwaukee.

William said he and David ran away "because there was nothing to do in Fayetteville."

There wasn't much to do in the boxcar either. The car, locked tight soon after the boys settled inside, took almost two weeks to reach its destination, the yards of the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co.

The boys amused themselves by telling jokes and stories and kept alive by drinking the dregs from a near endless supply of empty beer bottles in the car.

"We always thought we'd get out alive but just in case we prayed a lot," said William, "a lot more than we ever did before."

GI Bill Could Aid 38,000

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Veterans Administration office here said Thursday it expected some 4,800 military veterans in Arkansas to take advantage of the educational provisions of the new GI bill in its first year.

There are 38,000 veterans in Arkansas eligible for the benefits, the VA said.

Payments under the bill are expected to be $3.1 million during the first year.

Heart Patient Is Unconscious For Two Days

By RICHARD BEENE

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Marcel DeRudder still lay unconscious today, two days after a partial artificial heart was implanted in his chest, and doctors were treating him for possible brain damage.

DeRudder, 65, began undergoing treatment Friday for removal of excess brain fluid. Physicians said DeRudder suffered possible brain damage during Thursday's six-hour operation when an artificial pump took over part of the work load of the left ventricle of his own heart.

An advisory late Friday said it was hoped "any possible brain damage" would be temporary. "This condition has been encountered previously in open surgery."

After assuming about 67 per cent of the work normally done by DeRudder's left ventricle, the pump began carrying 75 per cent of the work load, an earlier advisory said.

DeRudder's wife, Edna, 60, arrived by plane from their home in Westville, Ill., and visited her husband late Friday.

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, heart surgeon who performed the operation with a team of specialists, briefed Mrs. DeRudder on her husband's condition before she saw him in a special three-room intensive care suite.

Mrs. DeRudder, a grocery clerk who had to support her husband recently because of his heart ailment, said he had suffered heart trouble for 25 years.

"My husband told me he was willing to be a human guinea pig. That way, he said, maybe they would learn something that would save someone else," Mrs. DeRudder said in Chicago as she prepared to fly to Texas.

Dr. DeBakey, meanwhile, said DeRudder's unconsciousness may be blamed on edema, a swelling caused by an unusually large amount of fluid in the brain.

Runaways in Boxcar for Two Weeks

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Two small boys with a boxcar of promises to keep return to their North Carolina homes today, regretting the day they decided things were too dull in Fayetteville. But this time they will travel by plane.

William Waddell, 13, and David Harvey, 12, were found safe Thursday in the sealed box car that had imprisoned them since April 8.

The boys climbed aboard in Fayetteville after learning from a trainman that the car was headed for Milwaukee.

William said he and David ran away "because there was nothing to do in Fayetteville."

There wasn't much to do in the boxcar either. The car, locked tight soon after the boys settled inside, took almost two weeks to reach its destination, the yards of the Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co.

The boys amused themselves by telling jokes and stories and kept alive by drinking the dregs from a near endless supply of empty beer bottles in the car.

"We always thought we'd get out alive but just in case we prayed a lot," said William, "a lot more than we ever did before."
